'DTH Cos to Raise Prices in a Staggered Manner'

Telecom Reforms a Boost to Industry: GSMA

Trai to Meet Telecom Cos over Service Quality, Pesky Calls on Feb 17

Mumbai: The Telecom Regulatory Authority of India (Trai) said Thursday it has called a meeting with mobile phone operators on February 17 to discuss the quality of wireline and wireless services, especially considering the 5G rollout, besides the continuing menace of pesky calls and messages. The carriers are expected to follow the standards laid down in the 'Standards of Quality of Service of Basic Telephone Service (wired) and Cellular Mobile Telephone Service (wireless), 2009' as amended from time to time, the sector regulator said in a media release.

The meeting will discuss potential measures and action plan to improve the QoS, review the current QoS standards, QoS for 5G services, and unlicensed commercial communications," the regulator added in its statement. The telecom regulator monitors the performance of telecom services provided by the operators through Performance Monitoring Reports, which it collects on a quarterly basis, in addition to conducting audits and objective assessments to ensure the standards meet the QoS benchmark. The Trai is also holding a meeting that the Department of Telecommunications (DoT) had held with telecom operators and internet service providers (ISPs) in December to discuss the issue of increasing call drops and deteriorating service quality.

Mumbai: Down to business (DTH) operators will pass on the price increase by TV broadcasters in a staggered manner rather than going in for a bang as announced, said top executives at DTH companies. "The New Tariff Order (NTO) 2022, which came into effect from February 1, will lead to an increase in consumer tariffs by at least ₹25-50 per customer. According to a TRAI Q4 2022 report, the average revenue per user (ARPU) for TV subscriptions was ₹220 net of taxes. A Tata Play spokesperson said that the company will carry on the price increase in steps over a period of 6 weeks. "There will be increase by 14% for most customers, after revisiting the same for the last 6 years. Despite broadcasters asking a higher hike, we can keep the price hike to its minimum because the network carriage and the tax components of the price are not being increased," the spokesperson added. A top-level official with a leading DTH firm said the industry has decided to implement the price hike in parts. "DTH operators will not go for a price hike of one rupee to reduce the burden on customers. In any case, the price hike will get implemented when the subscription package of the customer is updated," he added.

New Delhi: India's recent policy reforms on the telecom sector have increased opportunities for the industry and the government's ambition to bring in light touch regulations is the right approach, said GSMA Association director general Matt Grayson. "In India, we have improved possibilities for the industry. Even if doing business is really important, I believe that the government is doing to keep light touch regulations that are more in line with approach," Grayson said. London-based GSMA represents more than 700 telecom carriers in 220 countries including India, the UK, the US and Vodafone Idea. "It is a right of every successful spectrum holder or adjusted price revenue (APR), which we speak to operators in India, by and large, they are happy," Grayson said, adding that it's time to put reforms into action.

Airwaves should be solely allocated to mobile operators, not to satellite or private network providers

In September 2022, the Cabinet approved a list of structural and procedural reforms, including re-orientation of spectrum usage charge (SUC) and other charges. The industry is working to ensure that the government increases the amount of spectrum holdings to 20 years from 20 years, for future spectrum auctions. "Government spectrum is being utilized properly by private operators and that airwaves should be solely allocated to mobile operators, not to satellite or private network providers," Grayson said. "Universal Service Obligation (USO) levy should be as low as possible. The industry is mature enough now to have its own well-built, I don't think, in a market world in which India certainly belongs. It is appropriate for the government to take money and then distribute it back," he said.

'Voda has a Chance to Survive. Thrive if Reforms & Policies are Put into Action'

New Delhi: Matt Grayson, director general of the GSMA Association, called on the Indian government not to "abandon" its vision of a 5G-led digital India, but to ensure that the reforms and policies are actually put into action, and not just on paper. "It is important that the government continues to support the industry in its efforts to improve the quality of service and to ensure that the reforms and policies are actually put into action, and not just on paper," Grayson said. "Vodafone Idea has a chance to survive and thrive if reforms and policies are actually put into action, and not just on paper," he said. "There is a chance for Voda to survive. Thrive if reforms and policies are actually put into action, and not just on paper," he said. "I don't think, in a market world in which India certainly belongs. It is appropriate for the government to take money and then distribute it back," he said.
